Disclaimer:

Benefaction’s services, articles, samples, templates, links, websites and ALL resources are offered for informational purposes only and should not be construed as professional advice. By using our website and or our services, you release Benefactions and Sarah Hamilton from any and all liability. We do not provide any type of humanitarian or personal crisis advice, other than if you are in need of emergency or crisis care, please contact your local police, fire or medical assistance as appropriate. We do not endorse any agency or organization. Your organization is unique and will have specific circumstances and needs. We encourage your organization to seek appropriate professional assistance as needed. We recommend you consult with legal professionals to ensure that your organization complies with state and local requirements, federal laws, as well as an accountant who has expertise in accounting rules for charitable endeavors, so that you can be confident that your organization is in compliance with all legal requirements. We recommend that you familiarize yourself with state-specific resources where information about organizational and financial management practices, liability, good governance, and accountability. If you are a nonprofit, these resources are often available free of charge from your state association of nonprofits. If you do not agree to these terms, do not utilize our services or website.

PROCEDURES:
